MOLA KILLED WHEN PLANE CRASHES ON MOUNTAIN IN A FOG

Two Staff Officers and Two Pilots Also Perish in Accident Which Deprives Spanish Insurgent Leader of His Righthand Man — Was Commanding Drive Against Bilbao

VITORIA, Spain, June 3 (AP).—General Emilio Mola, commander of all insurgent armies in Northern Spain and director of the two-month-old siege of Bilbao, was killed today in the crash of a fog-bound airplane.

Two of his staff officers and two pilots died with him in the wreck near Briviesca, twenty-five miles northeast of Burgos, capital of General Francisco Franco's insurgent regime early in the war and still a Franco stronghold.

Mola's body was thrown twenty-five yards from the wrecked plane, and was so badly mangled it could be identified only by the tan waterproof coat he wore.

ARREST STRATEGIST
The beheaded Mola was Franco's righthand man, accounted the ablest strategist among all the insurgent chieftain's lieutenants. He was in command of the drive which had carried the insurgent forces within sight of Bilbao, Basque capital on the Bay of Biscay.

Apparently there was only one witness of the tragedy, a young shepherd tending his flock on the mountain slope where the plane crashed.

Newspaper extras carried the news to Vitoria late in the afternoon. All public activities were suspended. Newspapers called his death "irreparable for Spain."

General Mola's funeral will be held at Burgos tomorrow.

MUST EXPLAIN TO HIS PARISH

Minister Who Officiated for Duke of Windsor Called To Account

LONDON, June 3 (AP).—The "poor man's parson," who defied church opinion to marry the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, will be called to account when he gets back to his parish.

The parochial council of St. Paul's Anglican Church at Darlington held an emergency meeting today and decided Rev. R. Anderson Jardine will be "asked to explain" why he acted without permission of church authorities. Some of his congregation approved the vicar's step, while others were critical.

TAKING NO ACTION

The Bishop of Fulham, who governs Anglican Church affairs in France, indicated no ecclesiastical disciplinary action will be taken against the clergymen.

Some of St. Paul's parishioners recalled their pastor had talked of leaving the church for another appointment and wondered if he might become private chaplain for the Duke.

Dr. Mervyn Haigh, Bishop of Coventry, urged the Church of England not "to close the door of the church in people's faces" because they are divorced.

Speaking today before his diocesan conference, the Bishop added: "I do not forget the necessity for the 'wedding garment,' but we ought surely not to be too precise about its cut."

CALLED A PRETENCE

The Church Times, Anglo-Catholic organ, called the religious ceremony at the Chateau de Gande a "pretended solemnization."

It said Mr. Jardine's offer to perform the ceremony was the "irresponsible action of an English clergymen," adding that the vicar's superior "did all possible to dissociate the church from the proceedings."

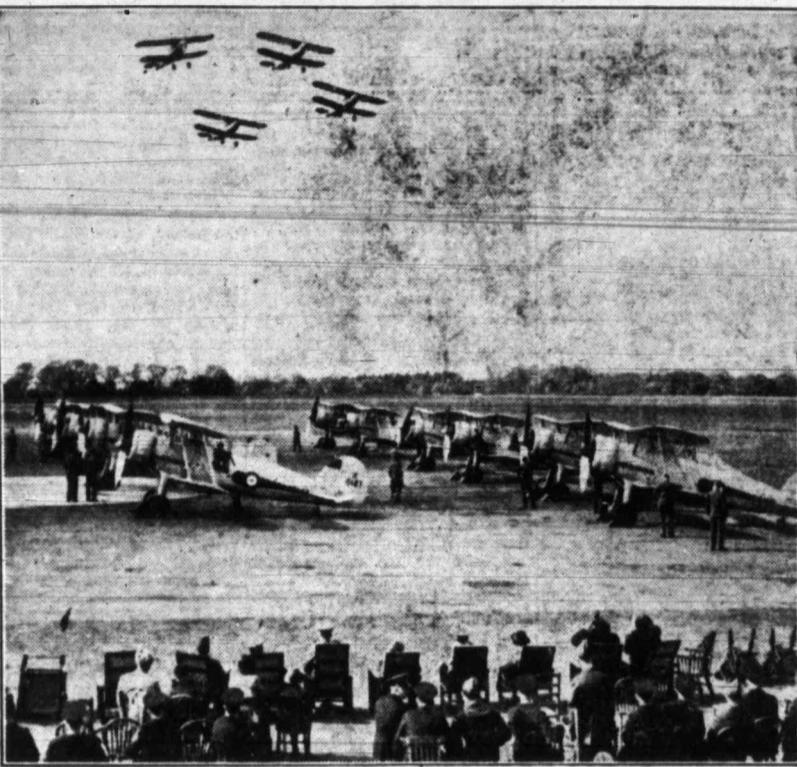

NO PLACE LIKE HOME

QUEBEC, June 3 (AP).—Most members of the Canadian army contingent that attended Coronation ceremonies returned home today, docking here to the tune of "There's No Place Like Home." The liner Montclare had a passenger list of about 850 when it nosed into Wolfe's Cove this morning.

Finds Shocking State of Affairs In Actions of Potato Board

VANCOUVER, June 3 (AP).—Evidence that the British Columbia Coast Vegetable Marketing Board had seized potatoes from various Chinese growers without paying them anything for the vegetables was termed by Mr. Justice Manson in Supreme Court today as a shocking state of affairs.

The conference is essentially one for an exchange of ideas and information, rather than being concerned with an effort to lay down a cut-and-dried common policy.

This, it was stated tonight, is the first occasion on which all the

BORROWING TO PURCHASE GOLD

U.S. Treasury to Borrow $800,000,000 Instead of Issuing Currency

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP).—An announcement by Secretary Morgenthau that the United States Treasury will borrow $800,000,000 next week indicated today the Government's gold "sterilization" policy will be continued indefinitely.

That policy has the effect of increasing the public debt, because it provides for borrowing to pay for gold purchases.

Officials say this tends to prevent inflow of foreign gold from increasing the domestic credit supply and thereby discourages inflationary credit expansion.

Formerly the Treasury paid for gold by issuing currency against it, thus increasing the supply of lendable money in the country.

NOTE ISSUE MONDAY

Morgenthau told a press conference he would offer an $800,000,000 note issue Monday, from the proceeds of which $300,000,000 will be used to retire maturing discount bills and $500,000,000 will go into the Treasury's dwindling supply of ready cash. The interest rate and the turn of the notes will be announced Monday.

The Treasury chief made no mention of the gold policy, but informed authorities said the big sum of new cash would be borrowed in anticipation of future gold acquisitions.

FIVE-YEAR-OLD BOY STILL LOST IN BUSH

EDMONTON, June 3 (AP).—Feared drowned in the Wolf River near his farm home ninety miles southwest of Edmonton, five-year-old Jimmy Nason still was missing today as police and firefighters sought him through bush country where fires have been raging for two days.

Missing since he wandered from his home early Tuesday, the child distracted firefighters from their regular duties yesterday, many of them leaving the fire front to hunt for him.

Fire on Seattle Waterfront Does Serious Damage

Four Firemen Injured in Fighting Flames Which Wreck Pier With Estimated Damage $100,000

—Blaze Extinguished by Efforts of Firemen, Coast Guardsmen and Crew of Tug

SEATTLE, June 3 (AP).—A spectacular fire of undetermined origin wrecked the Connecticut Street pier here late today, causing damage estimated at $100,000 or more and injuring four firemen.

Fanned by a strong north wind, the flames threatened a large part of the Seattle waterfront until they were brought under control by joint efforts of the fire department, coast guardsmen and the crew of the navy tug Modoc.

The second story of the dock was used by the coast guard as a rifle range, and small arms ammunition was stored there. Cartridge cases flew high into the air, and there was a series of explosions that sounded like machine gun fire as the ammunition exploded. No casualties were reported from this source.

CUTTERS IN FIGHT

The coast guard cutter Redwing, moored to the pier when the fire broke out, aided in extinguishing the flames. Another coast guard cutter, the Atlanta, fought the fire at first, but withdrew to give room for the Modoc and two fireboats.

First discovered just beneath the deck level of the terminal about 4 p.m., the fire spread so rapidly that two automobiles parked on the pier were destroyed.

Though machinery and equipment owned by the company has been saved the fire has destroyed two million feet of felled and bucked timber, valued at $8,000.

A crew of ninety men from Kapoor was fighting the blaze and expected to have it controlled late last night.

RAIN FOLLOWS STORM

CALGARY, June 3 (AP).—A "black blizzard" which caused crop and property damage, following the hottest day of the year, Wednesday, gave way to drenching rains early today, in Southern Alberta.

Blaze in Vicinity of Jack Lake Causes Damage Of $8,000

Fire which started in the burned-off area in the vicinity of Jack Lake, paralleling the Kapoor Lumber Company Railway, became uncontrollable at a late hour yesterday afternoon and swept an area of 120 acres.

Though machinery and equipment owned by the company has been saved the fire has destroyed two million feet of felled and bucked timber, valued at $8,000.

A crew of ninety men from Kapoor was fighting the blaze and expected to have it controlled late last night.

Trapper Has Leg Crushed by Tree

VANCOUVER, June 3 (AP).—Juice Belanger, sixty-five, Coast trapper and hunter, was brought to Vancouver today by Provincial Constable W. W. Trant, of Alert Bay, for treatment, when his leg was crushed by a falling tree at Ingersoll River, Quilchena Sound.

Absentee Vote Tightens Race In Grand Forks-Greenwood

THE Liberal majority in British Columbia's Nineteenth Legislature was raised to fourteen last night with the election of J. M. Bryan, veteran newspaperman, in the northern riding of Mackenzie. Ballot counts from thirty-seven of the forty-five polls in the vast coastal constituency gave Bryan a small but safe plurality over his Conservative opponent, B. M. MacIntyre. Mackenzie was the last of the forty-eight ridings to have its representative decided.

Meanwhile, counting of absentee votes in Grand Forks-Greenwood, where E. C. Henniger, Liberal, has been conceded election, narrowed his majority over the Conservative opponent to twenty-four. Mayor T. A. Love's added support came from those who voted for him in polls in other parts of the province.

THIRTY-ONE LIBERALS

Bryan's victory in Mackenzie, held by a Conservative in the last House, gave the Liberals thirty-one of the Legislature seats, a loss of four.

It also eliminated the possibility of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation going into a dead heat with Conservatives for the official Opposition place. A win for Herbert Gargrave, C.C.F., would have given both parties eight members.

Premier Pattullo was advised of the latest developments as he prepared to take a holiday before deciding on Cabinet changes. Preparing for the next session of the Legislature.

The Premier said yesterday he would bring in legislation to set up a new Provincial Trade Department.

GOLD BULLION CHANGES HANDS

Record Amount of Yellow Metal Offered on London Market

LONDON, June 3 (AP).—Excitement continued at a high pitch in financial quarters today as a record amount of gold was offered in the bullion market and a fresh crop of rumors caused further unsettlement in securities.

A total of £1,533,000 ($12,475,025) in gold changed hands at 140s 9d ($34.67) a fine ounce, one pence higher than on Wednesday. It was understood the British Exchange fund took more than ninety per cent of the metal offered.

Today's offerings compared with £1,793,000 ($8,830,525) sold on Wednesday, which was near to being a record of itself.

FLOOD AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP).—A flood of yellow metal, moving toward New York from private gold hoards and Government holdings in Europe and the Far East, was augmented today by more than $16,000,000, raising the total for the last three days to nearly $40,000,000.

A rush to exchange gold for dollars and other currencies, centring in London, washed one of the biggest waves of metal imports toward United States shores since the dollar was revalued early in 1934.

Bankers engaged during the day $10,753,000 in London for shipment to New York and $5,250,000 in Japan.

MINING PIONEER HAS TRAGIC END

Found in Cabin With Head Shattered Presumably by Dynamite Explosion

NELSON, B.C., June 3 (AP).—Authorities tonight prepared for an inquest tomorrow into the death of Eric Stevenson, pioneer of the southern interior mining district, whose body, with the head shattered, was found in his cabin near Sandon.

Neighbors who said they heard a terrific explosion rushed to Stevenson's cabin and found the body. Police believe a quantity of dynamite was responsible for the blast.

Stevenson was foreman of the North Star mine at Kimberley in 1895 and held the same position at the Homestake property at Roseland in 1897 and at the Brooklyn property at Phoenix in 1900. In 1924 he operated the Van Rio mine at Silverton, and in 1925 the Wonderful mine at Sandon in Clarence Cunningham.

Canadian Industry to Benefit From Huge Orders Placed in Recent Weeks—Important Expansion Of Employment in Many Centres Predicted By Acting Minister of National Defence

OTTAWA, June 3 (C)—Contracts for more than $14,000,000 for military, naval and air equipment have been awarded within recent weeks, Hon. Norman Rogers, acting Minister of National Defence, announced tonight.

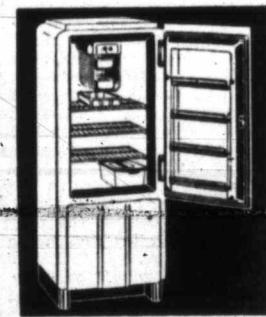

Details were not made public, but Mr. Rogers said about $10,000,000 of the contracts will be spent in Canada.

This follows the extended defence programme announced in Parliament at the past session. National Defence Department main estimates for the present fiscal year jumped to $33,730,873, an increase of $14,368,434 from the previous fiscal year.

AT VAUGHAN'S FIVE STORES

The largest share of the contracts is for the air force, $6,857,352, of which it is estimated $4,246,066 will be spent in this country.

Of $6,068,699 for military equipment and stores, $4,816,899 will go to Canadian industries, as will $672,760 of $1,130,760 being spent for the naval services.

FOUR MINESWEEPERS

Mr. Rogers said it is expected contracts for the four minesweepers authorized by Parliament will be announced in the near future. In the allocation of this work due consideration has to be given to the unemployment existing in centres where shipbuilding plants are established.

"Despite the large expenditures involved in placing the defence forces of Canada on an efficient basis," he added, "the orders for equipment have been widely distributed across the Dominion.

"In almost every instance the industry affected has received the defence equipment order as an addition to its normal production of peace-time materials. At the same time these additional orders have resulted in an important expansion of employment in many industrial centres."

DIVISION OF FUNDS

The $33,730,873 was composed of $17,850,428 for militia services, $4,486,811 for the naval service and $11,391,850 for the Royal Canadian Air Force.

"In general," Mr. Rogers said tonight, "the contracts have been let after public advertisement and tenders. In certain cases where competitive bids were not practicable owing to the special character of the equipment required, the financial provisions of the contracts have been approved by an inter-department committee set up for this purpose.

"In some instances where the requirements of the department could not be supplied by Canadian manufacturers, orders have been placed in Great Britain through the office of the High Commissioner for Canada.

"We shall never forget their friendly messages, which mean so much to us today," their joint message said.

"After the trying time we have been through, we now look forward to a happy and useful private life and to that measure of peace which we hope will be granted us."

IN "FAIRYLAND" CASTLE

They were to begin their life together and their search for happiness as private citizens in the "fairyland" castle at Wasserlebenburg, in Austria, where the duke visited before coming to Cande.

A private car attached to the Austria-bound train was to carry them on the overnight trip. They left the chateau at 6:25 p.m., by auto, to catch the train—the duchess waving her handkerchief to the cheering crowds at the gates and the duke sitting far back and acknowledging greetings with a nod.

There were only two unexpected incidents.

FORGOT HIS BOOK

Mayor Mercier forgot to bring the "Livre de Famille"—the official French book presented at marriages with counsel on how to raise children—and dashed home after the ceremony to get it for the duke.

Edward's firm and high-pitched "I will" to the English pastor was so firm and loud that guests in the flower-banked music room were startled.

And then Edward was so overcome for a moment, when called upon for a speech at the wedding breakfast, that he could say only:

"Thank all of you people for coming on this occasion so important to us."

DUPRE AT ORGAN

The famous French organist Marcel Dupre played Bach's "Twenty-Ninth Cantata" the B Minor Canon by Schumann and a prelude and fugue in G Minor during the civil service.

The bridegroom's wedding gift to his bride, friends disclosed, was a diadem of diamonds.

The duke was dressed in black morning coat, striped trousers, wing collar and black and white checked cravat; a white carnation in his lapel.

The bride was in "Wallis blue," the duke's favorite color, a soft shade of silk in the mode for afternoon dress—hat, shoe and gloves were of matching color. The dress was of simple lines. At the neck was a glittering diamond and sapphire brooch and from her left wrist sparkled a diamond and sapphire bracelet. She wore earrings to match.

THE ONLY RELATIVE

Mrs. D. B. Merriman, of Washington, D.C., the bride's aunt, who was with her during the period in London after she obtained her divorce last Fall, was the only relative of either principal present.

Others in the room included Herman L. Rogers, intimate of the newlyweds, who has acted as their spokesman; Prefect Vernet, of the Department of Indre et Loire, and M. Bernard, a secret service official.

A huge bouquet of peonies stood on the stone fireplace on the south side of the room, and a third table under a window held bouquets of red, blue, yellow and white flowers, among them a large bunch of lilies. The carpeting was of small-patterned red, green and blue and covered the whole floor.

THE CIVIL CEREMONY

Dr. Mercier proceeded quickly with the short ceremony, informed the new duchess she must obey her husband, and the duke that he must provide for his wife's need.

A brief "oui" from each announced their willingness to take the other as lawful mate.

The doctor-mayor handed the papers of marriage to the Monts town crier, who bicycled to the town hall to record them.

"By one of those whims of destiny," the mayor told the bridal pair, "it is under the blue sky and among the flowers of the garden of France, in the laughing valley of the Indre, that the most moving of all idylls has just unfolded itself . . ."

"I'm saluting in its (France's) name, a prince who was the well-beloved sovereign of a friendly

Department of Trade to Await Action in House

CREATION of British Columbia's intended Department of Trade and Commerce will be preceded by legislation at the next session, Premier Pattullo said yesterday, indicating that no immediate steps would be taken to enlarge the present Cabinet on that account. The Premier will leave today for a brief vacation at Harrison Hot Springs.

GOING HOME

people and her whom His Highness has chosen from a noble country to which we are attached with the same precious bonds—greatness and glory—permits him who has just received the mutual consent uniting your destinies to give you the most sincere wishes for your happiness."

COCKTAIL INTERLUDE

The newlyweds turned then to the terrace with their friends for a cocktail interlude between services, then went separately to the music room for the religious service.

The altar was in an alcove of the room and was improvised with an old oak chest. At each end were single, tall yellow tapers and in the middle a golden cross.

The Duke and Major Metcalf entered the room after the guests. A moment later came the bride on Rogers' arm.

The massive march from the Judas Maccabeus Oratorio, by Handel, was played while the Duke took his place.

During the ceremony there was the soft music of the choral "Gloria in Excelsis," by Dupre, and Cesar Franck's "Adagio in C Major."

SIMPLE DIGNITY

The service ended in simple dignity with the vicar's prayer to God for his blessing on "this man and this woman." The organ gave the joyous strains of "Oh, Perfect Love," during the benediction, and then the chorus, "O Jesus," by Bach.

The wedding party then left the music room, to go to the dining-room and terrace for the buffet wedding breakfast.

The Duke and his bride left the party briefly to change to traveling costumes—the Duke to a blue serge suit and the Duchess to a suit of heavy blue woolen, with blouse of flowered print in blue and white.

WEDDING BREAKFAST

Setting off, she had a trimmest hat trimmed at the edge with small leaves of blue and white. Tucked into the breast pocket of her jacket was a handkerchief of crepe matching the blouse.

GOING HOME

By 2:15 o'clock most of the guests were homeward bound. The Baron and Baroness Eugene de Rothschild, last to arrive, were first to depart.

A huge tray bearing 2,000 telegrams of good wishes was brought to the Duke and Duchess after the wedding breakfast, but they were left unopened. They will be read at Wasserlebenburg.

Although only five newspapermen were permitted to see the ceremony, the Duke and Duchess went to the doorway to pose for pictures and Edward expressed his regret that he had not been room for all.

ON SPECIAL WIRES

Leased telephone wires near the chateau gates and telegraph lines installed in the garage were used to carry the news of the marriage for the 100 or so newspapermen and women on hand.

The country inns were taken over as newspaper headquarters, and the newspaper folks were among the crowd cheering as the newlyweds drove forth from the chateau to their train.

Preceded by the automobile of Mayor Mercier and a motorcycle policeman, the Windsor car disappeared down the road to the accompaniment of "hurrahs" and "vive" from 250 onlookers. At the wheel of the car was George Ladbrooke, who for seventeen years has served the Duke as chauffeur.

NIAGARA IN FROM SOUTH

Canadian-Australasian Liner Had Large List of Passengers Aboard

Bringing in a large list of passengers from South Sea ports, the majority of whom are English-bound, the Canadian-Australasian

SS. Niagara, Captain William Martin, commander, docked here last evening shortly before 9 o'clock.

Officers of the ship reported fine weather for the trip, the most interesting happening being when the ship steamed out of her course about three hours between Suva and Honolulu to meet the yacht Viking, whose owner, G. F. Baker, the millionaire New Yorker, was ill.

Captain Martin wanted to bring the patient aboard the Niagara for the emergency operation, which Mr. Baker's personal physician considered necessary, but the latter was afraid to take the risk of moving the sick man. An Australian physician and an English nurse, who were traveling on the ship, volunteered to go aboard the yacht and assist, and did so, an operation being performed on the Viking, while the Niagara proceeded on her way towards Honolulu.

Prominent travelers aboard the Niagara were Dr. (Mrs.) C. Sweet, vice-president of Women's Pan-Pacific Conference, going to Vancouver, accompanied by Miss F. Rothwell, an Australian delegate; R. J. A. Massie, director of the British-Australian Tobacco Company; Mr. and Mrs. E. Purbrick, the former being proprietor of Chateau Tabitha Wineries; Mr. and Mrs. F. Whitehead, the former being a prominent Australian grazier, on a round-the-Pacific cruise, and W. J. Shortreed, naval supervisor of Spain would

HIGH INDIAN OFFICER

Also on the liner's "Who Who" were General M. McMullen, G.C.B., C.M.G., C.I.E., D.S.O., general officer commanding Eastern Command (British Army) in India; Mr. and Mrs. G. Martin, the former being representative of the Cunard-White Star Line in Melbourne; Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Toop, prominent residents of Wellington; Lieut.-Col. E. C. Wheeler, Indian Army officer on tour of Canada, accompanied by Mrs. Wheeler, and Mrs. A. M. Wilkie, and Miss C. M. Wilkie, well-known socialites of Wellington.

Also aboard the Niagara were Dr. Pierce, famous sword-fisherman, who has been some time in New Zealand pursuing his favorite sport, where he landed forty-four striped marlin among other sporty salt water fish; Alf Blatch, champion lightweight of Australia, accompanied by his manager, C. Lucas, en route to Chicago; Miss Nancy Head, of London, who is on her way home after taking a party of children to Australia for the Fairbridge Farm School, and who left the liner here to pay a visit to the school near Duncan, and C. A. Strickland, British agent at Mombasa.

COMPULSORY OR OPTIONAL

State health insurance has been approved by a majority of the voters of British Columbia, but there is such substantial opposition to the conception of compulsion that the Provincial Government should exercise great caution in the course that it will pursue. The many and valid objections to the scheme now embodied in legislation could be obviated by making health insurance optional, though conducted under the aegis of a governmental commission. By that method the administration would be carrying out the mandate it has received at the polls. In the wording of the plebiscite there was no mention of "compulsion."

It is wholly desirable that in any scheme devised for social amelioration there should be the utmost public co-operation. Compulsory health insurance as incorporated in law in this Province provides for the mandatory levy of taxation on salaries and wages, and in thousands of cases against the wishes of those who are to be the beneficiaries. It is not the aim of political wisdom, or even of party extremism, to antagonise a large section of the people, and the result of the plebiscite on health insurance has shown that probably 40 per cent of the voters of British Columbia are opposed to any such measure. Their opposition is one of principle and will persist, and that percentage of the voters that favors the freedom of the individual will align itself definitely against any political party that makes compulsion in individual health treatment a part of its creed.

The Provincial Government can satisfy the majority who voted for health insurance by legislation which will make it optional. There is too large a percentage of the people opposed to compulsion to attempt dragooning methods. If the Government can show by any optional system that health insurance is all that is claimed for it by its sponsors, then it will gradually embrace an increasing number of persons and there will be avoidance of that political rancor that is bound to develop under any compulsory scheme.

EDUCATION AND PROPAGANDA

The term propaganda, in its original use, was an innocent term enough, having been employed to denote a committee of Cardinals appointed to have charge of foreign missions. In a more general sense it has been applied to any institution or organization for propagating a system of doctrine. In the course of its history the word has acquired an additional connotation when applied to organizations, of a sinister or perhaps a formidable character, intent upon making converts and gaining adherents to a cause. There are, however, those who say that, in the last analysis, there is no real difference between propaganda and education in the ordinary sense of the word, that what one country calls education its neighbor may call propaganda, and vice versa.

On the other hand there are those who hold that the two words stand for two entirely distinct processes, that education endeavors to develop native capacities, while propaganda seeks to make proselytes.

A Harvard professor writes upon this subject in the current Atlantic Monthly. By way of introduction the editor of the magazine remarks that the professor's experience and sympathies have made him increasingly wary of the menace which, in his opinion, now threatens education in many lands. The essayist sets himself the task of tracing the similarities and differences between education and propaganda with a view to accurate definition of these terms. He points out that in early formal education, in the three R's for example, in the process of acquiring the tools of knowledge and in mere technical training there is nothing that deserves the name of propaganda, nothing that involves a conflict of ideals. Disagreements are likely to arise when we come to history, literature and social studies. In these branches the quarrel between education and propaganda may become acute. He observes also that propagandists are all for action and quick results, whereas education is "long range work." It plants things in soils of varying fertility and waits for them to grow as much as they can within the capacities and inclinations of the individuals. Propaganda aims at getting people to do, or not to do, some particular thing. Education seeks to develop human beings in terms of an ideal.

All of this is in the right direction, but the essayist would have done better if he had gone forward to show that in a totalitarian state there is no possibility of securing a "liberal education." The propagandist holds the doctrine that the individual is merely a means to an end, that end being the good and glorification of the state. He does not scruple to insist that this creed shall be taught to the child. He employs every device and method to mould the youth of the country on that pattern. The ideal of a liberal education is opposed to any attempt on the part of the state to treat the individual as having no rights save those which the state is pleased to confer upon him. The ideal of a liberal education forbids any group which happens to be in office at the moment to indoctrinate the schools with this or that set of political principles or social theories held by a particular party or faction. The theory of a liberal education under free institutions is thus a determining factor in our educational arrangements. It constitutes the only element of "propaganda" which has any legitimate place therein.

There are certain safeguards against subversive propaganda in our schools and universities. Perhaps the most important of these is the high ethical standard to which the members of the teaching profession generally measure up. In the privacy of his own family circle or among his intimate friends, a teacher may be admired for his adventurous liberalism or trusted for his safe and sane conservatism, but when he enters upon his daily official tasks in the schoolroom or college, his discourse will convey no hint of his private political views, but will be directed solely to the work of education. Another safeguard of great importance is the critical habit of mind which our educational system seeks to develop in the student body. A critical attitude is, of course, the very thing that propagandists most dislike. What they chiefly desire and seek to inculcate is a willing conformity, an uncritical acceptance of their doctrines and principles.

No system of schools in any country, however freedom-loving and democratic in its constitution and habits of thought, is wholly free from the danger of propaganda in one form or another. The doctrine of "academic freedom" is sometimes put forward. The teacher, it is said, has the right to speak the truth as he understands it, without interference. The claim for "academic freedom" is frequently brought forward by persons who are interested in the dissemination of certain doctrines and theories manufactured abroad, usually in countries from which the last vestiges of freedom, academic or political, have been effectively banished.

TOO MANY PARTIES

That amorphous doctrine known as Social Credit received but the scantiest acknowledgment at the British Columbia polls, its candidates running almost consistently last in every constituency they contested and amassing only a minimum of votes. Within recent months there was no economic doctrine which received a wider measure of publicity in the press. Its proponents cannot complain that their gospel was not known to the voters. Not only were they prolific publicists, but they were given a leeway in the correspondence columns of the newspapers vouchsafed to the advocates of other political doctrine. They have failed lamentably to make any impression on the public mind of this Province. The lesson of Alberta and the character of the Government there weighed more with the electorate of British Columbia than all the arguments of the Social Credit Party in the recent election campaign.

British Columbia's latest election illustrates the folly of a multiplicity of parties. It led to split votes, and in many instances to the neutralization of public opinion. It made victory absolutely certain for the Liberals with less than 35 per cent of the voters supporting that political party. The result has proved that from the standpoint of representing public opinion, so far as majority rule is concerned, the Social Creditors and the Constructives might as well have never entered the contest. These parties may not consider their efforts have been wasted. No doubt their propaganda will continue, but the fact remains that, as in Spain, in France and in Austria and in some other countries, the multiplicity of parties is a sign of retrograde policies of general instability and of confusion. It is illustrative of the fact that there is chaos in public thought in this Province that a Government should be continued in power which represents only one-third of the electorate that voted on Tuesday.

OVERTHROWING THE TEMPLE

Already Mr. Roosevelt has driven a wedge deep into the heart of his party. In the solid group of Democratic Senators who have pledged unrelenting opposition to his attack on the judiciary lies the nucleus of a new political alignment. Ill-judged threats by Mr. Farley have greatly helped to stiffen and consolidate a group which has in effect been told that if its members do not hang together they will hang separately. A few more blows on the wedge and the huge, inchoate, undissolved Roosevelt following may be split from top to bottom.—Washington Post.

NANAIMO SUFFERS DAMAGE FROM WIND

NANAIMO, June 3.—High winds prevailing not only gave the fire department four runs, carried away fences and billboards, but sent a brass curtain rod, with its curtains intact, a distance of thirty feet to pierce a window pane belonging to Mrs. Mary W. Hardy on the Crescent.

The curtain rod belonged to the Crescent Hotel, where it was a window fixture.

Note and Comment

By Sandham Graves

Twenty-six deaths, 528 persons injured, and 1160 accidents in 120 days, to say little of property damage exceeding $100,000. That is the price British Columbia citizens paid for the operation of 85,000 motor vehicles between January and April, inclusively, this year. Do not, however, blame the vehicles, nor exclusively their drivers. Accidents occur when two or more people take a chance simultaneously, leaving to luck what should be a matter of precaution. In some instances, police records show, pedestrians walked into the cars. In others, drivers drove into fixtures like telephone polls, fences, road abutments, and so on. Most of the accidents occurred through haste when human beings were concerned were tired, at the end of the working day. Speed accounted for other crashes; while general carelessness led to a large number of minor mishaps.

At that rate one person in British Columbia dies every four days, in the name of speed and progress. Progress stands what?

Probably no greater service could be done for the youth of this and other countries than to teach them that, by and large, the only apples they are likely to gather in this world are those from trees they have planted themselves. That will hold true no matter whether the apples stand for physical possessions or spiritual values, for dollars and cents or for a well-trained mind. For that reason this column can command, and has commanded, the forest training plan instituted two years ago by the British Columbia Forest Service. Numbers of youths, eager and anxious to find a place in life, entered the scheme; were toughened up by a period of outdoor life in the woods; learned the rudiments of handling forest products; and left instructional camps for jobs in the private industry, and what is more important, with an aim in life. The same thing, to only slightly lesser degree, applied to the school of education, where young men became acquainted with the elementary requirements of prospecting. In so far as both these courses dealt with men as the possibility of where, however, they treated men as individuals, each with a separate and distinct problem in life, they succeeded and contributed something of permanent value to British Columbia.

Observation teaches that men set far too high a valuation on the forms and habits of the past, and leave entirely too much for granted in the future, all to the neglect of the most accessible opportunities of today. A stranger coming to British Columbia from the more settled parts of Europe would be impressed first with the great size of the Province; secondly, by the slight degree to which its total area has been developed; and lastly, he would be dumfounded to find half of the population clinging to three cities on the Coast. If on top of that he were told that immigration for 100 years had trickled in through the eastern seaboard only, dribbling off along the lines of trans-continental railways, until the influx petered out on the Prairies, he might well be pardoned for seeing but little sense in all that. In so far as physical development is concerned, British Columbia makes its progress on the basis of trade with the world. Lumber, minerals, fish, and farm products are the chief saleable resources. Minerals alone are a non-perpetuating crop. Timber, fish and farm products are reproductive, given good management. A few secondary industries live by reason of the existence of the four primary occupations; and these, with the exception of the tourists, comprise the materials with which we all must work. Capital and labor in any form that is found mutually agreeable, are the tools with which these materials can be worked. If material progress is to be achieved, the whole secret lies in the word work. Congregating in three cities on the extreme southern tip of the Province will not do it. Envying the production and saleability of past years will avail nothing. The fish will stay in the sea, the ore in the mines, sawflies and fire will eat the timber, and the forests will march in upon the farms, unless men go out after the fleeting and varying opportunities of today. Archives are important, and it is nice to view the future with hope, but only what men do today counts in the development of themselves, and the country they live in.

Of course there are those who say that material things do not matter; that man enters this world without possessions and must leave it the same way; and that his whole purpose in being is to perfect himself in the esoteric values, and spiritual knowledge. Probably it takes both spiritual and material growth to make a whole man. The point is too deep for a summer day. Certain it is, however, that British Columbia is a pioneer part of the frontier country of Canada; a Province, in fact, where overall and a stout heart are of more present worth than a tuxedo and a volume of poetry. For youth and for age, the past is a heritage, the future a hope, but today is for use—use it.

"There is nothing more polite than the modern labor agitator," said a street car companion to me recently. "Now, when he wishes to call a strike, he says, 'Gentlemen, be seated.' . . . There is nothing in law to say that you cannot change your name," commented a local barrister, recently. That brings to mind the inter-office communication between the staff of a well-known motion picture corporation and the publicity department, which read: "Frank Prince will hereafter be known as Fred Lawrence instead of George Wells. This refers to Franz Prince." . . . Asked by his teacher to compose a verse including the words "analyze" and "anatomy," a brilliant child penned the lines:

"My analyze over the ocean.
My analyze over the sea,
My analyze over the ocean,
Oh, bring back my anatomy."

North and South

One city alderman is famed for his odd expressions. Last time we saw him he told us how "an' cut his throat from top to bottom."

For many years a local bank was troubled by loafers sitting on a narrow ledge outside the building. The problem was solved last week by decorating the ledge with a few dabs of sticky tar and a handful of tacks. . . . We marvelled when Teddy, the club steward, blossomed forth with an automobile. He was undoubtedly assisted a few days previously by a little business transaction. He was seen to sell a shiny 1937 centenarian piece to a militia sergeant for twenty cents.

Bill, the Broad Street barber, often heard his wife refer to wash day as "Blue Monday." With characteristic Lancashire ingenuity he repaired the washing machine a sky blue color and told his better half she could henceforth call the day "bright blue Monday."

Professors claim man generations hence will have bulging foreheads. Our nearest approach is a bulging waistline. . . . An Ontario newspaper refers to the great national disease as "baebuettis."

That is what laid the foundation of our waistline. G.B.

Young Cool

A young musician about town is being quizzed by his friends on his definition of a "cool smoke." Being a staunch reader of advertisements, the musician had the fond desire to experience the Utopia of a smoker's dream—a "cool smoke."

One day he purchased a bamboo cigarette holder and promptly inserted a "masking." However, the hand-fashioned cigarette did not fit the new holder very well and quietly slipped out when the young man began to walk down the street. Contentedly puffed oxygen through the tube, he turned to his companion as his face suddenly beamed with a smile, "Boy, now I've got it—a 'cool smoke.'"

Shipping Subsidies

The old, old question of Government aid to mercantile shipping, by way of cash subsidies, is coming to the fore again. In fact, it was mentioned recently at a service club luncheon. While it is the general belief that Canadian shipping on the Pacific is in a bad way because of competition from foreign carrying vessels, there is a feeling that ship companies should only be subsidized after it has been determined that vessels are carrying at capacity and unable to "pay their way" because of low rates, and that subsidies should not be instituted simply to increase dividends of shareholders and directors of shipping companies.—R.A.G.

Urge Employer and Employee Compromise On Labor Questions

Hon. W. D. Euler Appeals for Tolerance and Calm Judgment in Solving Problems—Claims Present Prosperity Due to Armament Building

TORONTO, June 3 (C).—Careful and reasonable consideration of industrial problems confronting the Dominion was urged by Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of Trade and Commerce, in addressing delegates to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association tonight. Mr. Euler delivered the principal address at the annual dinner marking the close of the association's three-day convention.

"It is not my desire to go where angels fear to tread," declared Mr. Euler, "but it seems to me that the present is definitely the time, on the part of both employer and employee, for the exercising of tolerance, of calm judgment, avoidance of undue haste and an honest determination on both sides to deal justly, reasonably and with the saving grace of common sense with each other and, in the meantime, to sit steady in the boat."

He expressed the hope Canadians would not forget the lessons of the past. "Much of the world's prosperity is due to rearmament," he said. "What will be the condition when the enormous expenditures come to an end, as end they must?"

Referring to the development of public opinion in regard to labor matters, Mr. Euler recalled divergencies of opinion in the matter of workmen's compensation. Today, he added, no one would dream of questioning its wisdom and justice.

"Hardly an employer will contend that the old individualistic idea that labor is a commodity to be bought at the lowest price, should continue," he said. "The human rights of the workers to a wage that will enable him to live comfortably and, as a noted statesman would say, enjoy the more abundant life, is recognized more and more."

Until adequate schemes for employment insurance, health insurance and old age pensions are devised, men must be paid sufficient not only to provide a decent living, but enough besides to enable them to provide for their own security for the future.

"Labor also must recognize its responsibility; must be reasonable, deal justly, not be too impatient and must faithfully carry out any agreements into which it may enter," Mr. Euler declared.

The minister, speaking of his visit to Australia, referred briefly to trade negotiations in which he had participated. These negotiations, he said, were not yet completed. During his visit to Russia, normal trade relations were restored after conferences lasting three days.

The trade agreement with Germany, said Mr. Euler, was operating with reasonable success; Canada's exports almost doubled in the last six months.

International trade was still hampered by many restrictions, he said, exchange control and application of quotas having come into the picture. Before the war and afterward, tariff rates had constituted the chief barriers to international trade.

Mr. Euler declared Canada now stood fourth among the nations of the world in volume of exports, her imports since 1932 had increased by 15 per cent, while exports increased by 101 per cent. Employment figures were increasing at a very substantial rate and construction, which had lagged, was also showing definite improvement.

VANCOUVER YOUTH DROWNED IN LAKE

Lloyd Robinson Meets Death on Going for Swim in Alberni District

PORT ALBERNI, June 3.—The first summer swimming fatality of the Alberni district occurred last evening at Great Central Lake by the death of Lloyd Robinson, nineteen, of Vancouver.

According to police reports Mr. Robinson was employed at Camp Seven, a logging camp on Great Central Sawmills, Limited. He had been working during the day as a packer and in the evening told several of his companions that he was going for a swim in the lake.

Later in the evening his friends, passing along the shore, noticed his clothes on the beach. They intigated and later found his body floating in the water.

"Well, my dear," said he, as he was dressing, "I suppose you were right when you told me last night that there were burglars in the house."

"Why?"

"Because all the money that was in my pockets when I went to bed is gone."

"Well, if you'd been brave and got up and shot the wretch you'd have had your money this morning."

"Possibly, but then I should have been a widower."

She gave him back half the money.

The same fog that led to Mola's death spread over Northern Spain, hampering the Bilbao drive, which the course of his duties.

Only General De Liano had a place comparable to Mola's in Franco's command. Mola was in charge in the north, and even commanded the Madrid front when Franco himself was not there.

General Mola was flying from Vitoria, headquarters of his Bilbao drive, to Burgos in a bi-motored plane. The pilot, Captain Chameiro, apparently lost his bearings in the fog and smashed the plane against a mountain slope while flying low trying to get out of a fog bank.

Within three hours of the tragedy, which occurred about 3 p.m. (7 a.m. P.S.T.), General Franco issued a decree splitting the command of the insurgent northern armies in two.

General Fidel Diaz, hitherto head of the technical junta of the insurgent regime, was appointed to command forces operating against the Basque and along the rest of the Bay of Biscay front.

General Saliquet, commander of operations on the Madrid front under Mola, was made chief of insurgent forces on the Aragon, Soria and Madrid fronts. General Queip de Liano retained command of the southern armies.

Eden saw Nell, dressed in brown, smoking a cigarette, the same instant he saw her. They met half-way and Eden held out her hand, thinking, "It is more than my hand I give you, Nell. I give my heart, too."

She smiled at him. I didn't know whom to look for. There was no name on the card. But the flowers are lovely."

He frowned. "No name? That was stupid. Then you didn't know who I was."

"I had no idea who would be waiting for me."

Still holding her hand and looking into her eyes, he asked, "Are you glad it's I, Eden?"

"Very glad. I—I was hoping it would be you."

He was not, as he had feared he would be, disappointed in her. It was one thing to see and dance with a girl in David's luxurious house and quite another to see her after a working day. But the girl in a dark coat with a soft fur collar framing her face and a raspberry colored hat over ash blonde hair was no less lovely than the girl of last night in the gleaming white of Dee's new satin frock. And that was why, he told himself all day, he had wanted to see her again. "Liar," he jeered at himself. "That was just an excuse."

David's large and powerful coupe was parked a block away, in no time at all, in spite of heavy traffic and snow, he parked it outside a restaurant Eden had never seen.

"Ever been here?" he asked, and when she said she had not been, Nell said, "They have swell steaks and swell Cuban music. I never get enough of that music."

Inside lights along the wall shed a pale radiance. The pulsating rhumba seemed to beat in Eden's pulse and heart. She thought, "I've never been as happy as this before, never in my life."

Leaning across the table with the blue smoke of his cigarette between them, Nell said, his black eyes intense, "I had to see you again, Eden. (To be Continued)

Members of Society Hold Garden Meeting

A meeting of the Society for the Preservation of Native Plants of British Columbia was held in the garden of 1710 Rockland Avenue on Wednesday afternoon, when Mrs. Biggerstaff Wilson extended her hospitality by inviting the members to remain for tea, which was served in the garden.

As many of the members had recently joined the society, the president, Mrs. Hugh Mackenzie, confined her remarks to an explanation of the aims of the society, its method of working and such progress as had been made. Many suggestions regarding ways in which greater protection of certain species might be obtained were made by the members, but regular discussion was reserved for a general meeting, which will be held towards the end of September.

The forty members present thoroughly enjoyed the delightful garden and great interest was shown in the many and rare species of iris which made a glorious display. The blue poppies and rock plants received a good deal of attention.

Two Towns Hit

BY COSTLY FIRES

Clive and Calmar in Alberta Badly Damaged by Serious Outbreaks In Business Sections

EDMONTON, June 3 (CP)—Fires that hit two towns in the Edmonton district today wiped out major portions of the business sections in Clive and Calmar and doing damage estimated at close to $100,000.

Seven buildings were destroyed in Clive, sixty-five miles south of Edmonton, with total loss of about $50,000. Almost all of the business section was destroyed in Clive, including a hotel.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed one-half block of the business section of Calmar, thirty-three miles southwest of Edmonton, in a blaze that threatened to wipe out the town as 200 volunteer fighters organized into bucket-brigades to check the flames.

nations of the Empire have had an opportunity of discussing fully and intimately together and exchanging views upon world affairs and the great problems of world defense.

ACCEPT OPPORTUNITY

The dominions, it is added, accepted the opportunity to the full.

Tomorrow the principal delegates will continue their consideration of foreign affairs with special reference to the League of Nations. While the principal delegates discuss world affairs, committees consider lesser problems. Conversations have opened on Empire migration.

Prime Minister and Mrs. Chamberlain gave separate dinners tonight to the delegates and their ladies. At the Prime Minister's dinner Mackenzie King of Canada sat on Chamberlain's right hand, with Joseph Lyons of Australia at his left. At Mrs. Chamberlain's party only ladies were present. Both functions were held at West End hotels.

pier were destroyed before they could be moved.

Firemen injured were: S. A. Lockren, twenty-seven, hip injuries; Frank Nanard, hurt when knocked from the dock by falling timbers; Don Gray, sprained ankle, and Jimmy Cruise, wrenching back.

The pier was leased jointly by the United States Coast Guard and the Quaker Steamship Line from the port of Seattle. Origin of the fire was not immediately learned.

AMMUNITION EXPLODES

Hindered by exploding ammunition, the fire fighters had a stiff battle against the flames. The ammunition was the property of the coast guard. The coast guard also had just completed storing 1,000 bags of sulphur spray on the pier today, which added to the intensity of the flames.

FISH PLANT BEING BUILT

Large Scale Works for Reduction Purposes Rapidly Taking Shape

UCLUELET, June 3.—Work is going rapidly forward on the large pilchard reduction plant which has been under construction here for several weeks and operations are expected to start in the new plant about the middle of June. All necessary machinery and equipment will be installed in plenty of time for the opening of the pilchard season early in July.

This plant, which is being built by the Bamfield Fishing Company, a subsidiary to the Nootka Packing Company, is to be the latest and most modernly equipped plant of its kind on the West Coast. The company will reduce pilchards to oil, meal and fertilizer on the start, and later plans to complete the cannery and large cold storage plant, making it possible to operate all the year round.

The location for this large project was selected on account of the splendid harbor, the central location to a large percentage of the fishing fleet on the West Coast. Ucluelet is close enough to take advantage of the heavy runs in Barkley Sound, near enough to the halibut banks and about twenty miles from Bamfield, which is a fishing centre also sheltering a large local fleet. Ucluelet, situated as it is at the mouth of Barkley Sound, is able to receive mail, freight and supplies more often than points farther up the West Coast. This in itself was a large deciding factor in selecting this site for the new plant.

The plant, which is being built on the east side of the harbor, is now well under construction. Wharves have been built and repaired, and the main building, which is over two hundred feet long, is now almost finished and the machinery will arrive shortly. During the coming season, it is expected that Ucluelet will shelter a large pilchard fleet.

In the past the local fishermen have been constantly confronted with the problem of obtaining fresh bait and ice in sufficient quantities, but with this new plant in operation, this will cease to be a problem for the local fleet. Getting bait and ice right at home during the peak of the season, and at all times, will save the fishermen much time and extra expense.

SEEKS TO END FERRY STRIKE

Governor Martin Interested — Several Companies Sign Agreements

OLYMPIA, June 3 (AP)—Negotiations in the Puget Sound ferry strike were moved to Olympia today, as Governor Martin sought to end the six-day tie-up of passenger and automobile transportation.

While participants in the ferry walkout discussions prepared to meet with the Governor, another Northwest strike ended. The Orays Harbor Lumber Company, at Hoquiam, was ready to resume operations after 450 employees voted last night to accept wage increases and return after a one-day walkout.

Several "breaks" marked the ferry strike.

Boats were operating again between Ballard and Port Ludlow; Seattle and Suquamish, and between Chuckanut and Orcas and Lopez Islands, after the Ballard-Ludlow Ferry Company and the Chuckanut Inter-Island Ferry Company had signed agreements with the Inland Boatmen's Union. The union authorized an independent operator to operate between Seattle and Suquamish.

THIRD LEG OF FLIGHT ENDED

Amelia Earhart Arrives at Paramaribo on Round-the-World Journey

PARAMARIBO, Dutch Guiana, June 3 (AP)—Amelia Earhart landed here today at 12:50 a.m. (8:50 a.m. P.S.T.) on the third leg of her round-the-world flight.

Pan-American Airways, over whose route Miss Earhart is flying, reported the take-off of the blond aviatrix, and Captain Fred Noonan, her navigator, from Caripito, Venezuela, was without incident. Paramaribo is 750 miles south and east of Caripito and it was thought Miss Earhart would require only four or five hours to reach this goal.

Pan-American weather reports from Georgetown, British Guiana, indicated the big twin-motored monoplane would have clear weather all the way.

NEW EQUIPMENT TO BE EXHIBITED

Canadian Pacific Train Will Be Available for Public Inspection

VANCOUVER, June 3.—Vancouver will have a chance to inspect the latest developments in railway passenger equipment when the Canadian Pacific Railway places its two new trains, the Dominion, on public inspection here from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., Friday, June 11.

These trains are going into service on June 15, continuing until September 15, and on June 28 the trans-continental service regularly maintained by the Dominion and Trains 1 and 2 between Vancouver and Montreal, will be augmented by the crack Mountaineer, all sleeping car train operating between Vancouver and Chicago.

IN TWO SECTIONS

On view here June 11, the Dominion will appear as one train, as it is during Winter months, but in two sections designated No. 4 and No. 8.

No. 4 for the Summer season, will appear, as a coach-tourist train, with all-conditioned day coaches and tourist cars, a dining-car and open observation car.

No. 8 recalls the days of the old Trans-Canada, whose number it takes, in that it will be a solid, all-sleeping car train. The equipment, however, would put the old Trans-Canada, luxurious as it was, to shame, for the new No. 8 boasts a complete line of fully air-conditioned sleeping cars, air-conditioned dining-car and air-conditioned observation lounge car.

No. 4 will continue to leave Vancouver at 7:15 p.m. and No. 8 will follow "on the block" at 7:35 p.m. During the period June 28 to September 7, the Mountaineer will leave Vancouver at 6:35 p.m. Four trans-continental trains in and four out of Vancouver will be operated by the C.P.R. this Summer, in addition to the Kettle Valley and local trains.

CORRIENTES AND UMTALI RECEIVED INJURIES IN RIVER THAMES COLLISION

Captain George Kirkendale, harbor master, yesterday received a letter from his son, David, who is a deck officer of the Donaldson freighter Corrientes, together with a copy of The London News Chronicle, dated May 17, the morning following the collision in the Thames off Greenwich, when the London SS Umtali crashed into the Corrientes.

The Umtali, a passenger ship of 8,140 tons, was bound for Capetown, and the Corrientes was just arriving at the port of London with cargo from the Pacific Coast. Both ships appeared to be in danger of sinking as they headed for the shore, pushed by tugs which raced to their assistance when sirens on river steamers shrieked for assistance. The Corrientes was grounded, while the Umtali, with the tugs escorting her, was moored off Gravesend.

HEARS REPORTSDetails of Nelson Convention
Given—Plans Dance
For June 12

Members of Victoria Kinsmen Club gathered at the Empress Hotel last night at dinner, conducted general business and listened to a short address from Alderman W. T. Strath, recently elected a member of the Legislature.

The business portion of the gathering included announcement of plans for an inter-club picnic with clubs from Duncan and Port Alberni, the date to be arranged; discussion of proposed softball team to be entered in the Service Clubs' League, and arrangements for the annual golf tournament. Dr. Percy Rumball gave notice of a dance to be held at Macaulay Point Golf Club on Saturday, June 12.

Reports were presented by Archie Smith and Dr. Ben Nickells, who attended the district convention of Kinsmen clubs at Nelson, when John Reid, Vancouver, was appointed district governor, and M. McPherson, North Vancouver, deputy governor. An outline of the trip to Nelson was given by Dr. Nickells.

It was announced the Point's Perpetual Trophy for entertainment at conventions had been awarded to Victoria. It was previously held by the Vancouver Club. The cup is donated for the best "skit" put on by a club at a convention.

The much heralded musical comedy-drama, "It Happened in Hollywood," which had Victoria's little theatre groups hard at work in recent weeks, will go before the public at the Empire Theatre this evening and Victoria will be able to judge for itself just what a permanent civic theatre could do.

The curtain will go up on the first act promptly at 8 o'clock. The performance will be repeated tomorrow evening.

"It Happened in Hollywood" is a thoroughly entertaining play and is said to "reveal Hollywood's innermost secrets."

Members of the cast have been rehearsing for weeks, under the direction of Ernest Frederick Chester, of the New York stage, who will carry the leading role.

Cleveland Pulls Up Within Three Games of League Leading New York Club by 6-2 Triumph—White Sox Trim Boston—Tigers Go Under—Bees Blank Pirates in National League

AMERICAN LEAGUE

CLEVELAND, June 3 (AP)—The Indians pulled up to three games from the American League lead today by whipping the pace-setting New York Yankees, 6-2, behind Mel Harder's effective pitching.

Although touched for eleven hits, three of them by Lou Gehrig, Harder held the Yanks scoreless through the first six innings to chalk up his third victory against two defeats.

The Yanks lost the services of their slugging right-fielder, "Twinkieless" George Selkirk. He pulled up with a charley-horse in the second inning. Myril Hoag took over his assignment.

The Human Safe—The 90-year-old Burmese is the Abbot of the monastery of Kyaukme, Burma. In some strange manner he contrives to introduce silver shilling pieces under his skin without a puncture or opening. The silver is distinctly visible, and the abbot explained that he has trained his skin to swallow the coins after he has immersed them in a mysterious oil.

Mayor Maestri of New Orleans—When T. Semmes Walmsley resigned as Mayor of New Orleans, Mr. Maestri was the sole nominee for the unexpired term of two years. Since Louisiana is a one party State, the Republican vote being negligible, no election was held, and Mr. Maestri was declared nominated. The State Legislature was in session at the time, and a constitutional amendment was passed abolishing the scheduled election in New Orleans for two years hence, thereby extending the term of the incumbent four additional years without the necessity of holding a municipal election. The amendment received a majority in excess of 600,000 votes, thus electing Mayor Maestri by the largest number of votes ever cast for mayor of New Orleans, although his name has never appeared on a ballot.

"I'd rather jump out of that window (he was on the twentieth floor of a hotel) than sign that letter of apology," said Dean.

"I not only didn't call Frick and Barr the biggest crooks in the league but have witnesses to prove that I didn't."

Victoria Longshoremen 21, North Saanich 7.

Bringing their heavy guns into action in an eighth-inning attack and driving across five runs, Painter's Bruins, last season's British Columbia senior "B" champions, last night snapped the New Method Laundry's winning streak at six games, when they turned the laundry boys back under an 8-4 setback in a hang-up encounter.

Played at the Royal Athletic Park, the game provided many thrills and exciting moments for the season's largest turnout. There were a number of sparkling plays and plenty of base knocks—twenty-four in all—with the Bruins outshining their opponents, thirteen to eleven.

Fusilmen crashed the scoring column in the second frame with a pair of markers, but the New Method Laundry came back in the first of the third and knotted the count. Bruins pushed a lone tally over in the fifth and held the lead until the seventh inning. Here the laundrymen scored twice and for the first time in the game they were out in front.

Bruins threatened in their half of the seventh, but the rally was nipped in the bud when Harold Sage made a sensational running catch of Bradley's high fly for the third out. The bags were loaded at the time.

In the eighth inning Manager Bert Simpson's fuelmen laced out five bingles and made each hit good for a marker. Laundry made a game fight in the last frame, but the game ended when Roy Okell picked off Tommy O'Connell's long drive and doubled Lamb at second for the last two outs and the encounter was over.

IN THIRD PLACE

Kents entrenched themselves safely in third place when they journeyed to Sidney and handed out a 14-5 lacing to James Island in a one-sided exhibition. The music house men set up an early lead and coasted to an easy victory.

"Rosy" McLean, former laundry hurler, started on the hilltop for the home nine and stayed for six frames. Devlin replaced McLean in the seventh inning.

"Chuck" Turner did the hurling for the winners and except for the fifth and sixth innings hurled shut-out ball. He allowed ten hits, but

All Four Wheels Off the Ground

No folks, this is not the beginning of an auto racer's doom. It is just John Cobb's Napier-Railton leaving the roadway as he rounded a turn in the Coronation race for the Gold Trophy at Brooklands, Surrey, Eng., when due to the terrific speed of his car, all four wheels left the ground. Despite this type of daredevil driving, Cobb finished the race in third place.

Rushing Work on Boxla Enclosure

Workmen are rushing construction of the lacrosse box at the Royal Athletic Park, and present indications point to the structure being completed this week.

Of standard size and height, the box is being erected at the east end of the park. Victoria followers of the game will get their first glimpse of local squads playing in the new enclosure on Wednesday, June 9, when two intermediate teams clash.

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY

By Clifford McBride

Jane Dixon Says:

ROUND-UP DAY PRESENTS: A LETTER FOR "CONSTANT READER," DECLARING THAT SELDOM IS THE "SWEET YOUNG THING" THE AGGRESSOR IN THE ETERNAL TRIANGLE—A WIDOW WHO IS LOOKING FOR A PERFECT MAN—A WOMAN WHO IS DISTURBED BECAUSE A YOUNG MAN HAS CONFESSED HIS LOVE, BUT HAS NOT MENTIONED MARRIAGE—A GIRL WHO WANTS TO KNOW WHETHER SHE SHOULD PAY HER OWN CHECK WHEN SHE GOES TO LUNCH WITH A MAN WHO WORKS IN HER OFFICE.

Another week and another Round-Up!

For Constant Reader: "Not one time in a hundred is the 'sweet young thing' the aggressor in taking away another woman's husband. An unhappy, dissatisfied husband may be compared to a drowning man snatching at a straw, or a boat without a rudder which when it once goes adrift, requires a miracle to bring it safely to anchor again. Usually the same bait that was used to decoy and land a 'poor fish' will hold him if you continue to feed it to him. Husbands want to feel that their wives revere and adore them, and they look for demonstrations of this as often as the wife looks for and expects demonstrations of affection. And why shouldn't they?—Experience.

Lonesome Widow: You want to know where you can find a man who "doesn't drink, smoke, covet the other man's wife, is a good worker, kind to a family, a good provider, kind to children has a car and lots of money to keep up a home." You have a small home, "but no money or income to keep it going."

I fear you are chasing rainbows, my dear, Widow. Perfection is pretty hard to find in human beings. Most of us must be content to take the faults with the virtues. In fact, I haven't met an ideal man in so long I believe that type has died out completely. If I were you I'd cross out the "car" and "lots of money." With the "drink and smoke" you might compromise by adding the words "within reason." And if I found a man who answered all the other requirements—I'd nab him.

Impatient: The young man says he loves you. You love him. You believe you have reached the age where marriage is desirable. Your mother tells you this young man "means you no good because he has never mentioned marriage to you." Should you believe him or your mother, and how can you get him to propose?

A young man may love and still not ask the object of his affection to marry him. It may be that he is not yet ready for marriage, that he is not in a position to establish a home. I know of no formula to force a proposal from such a man. If I did, I would not suggest it, because such formulas are dangerous to personal liberty, to peace and to love itself.

Brown Eyes: Send the man a card or write him a note of birthday greeting. He already feels under obligation to you because of your Christmas present, and since he has done nothing except talk about it relieve him of the necessity for further explanation. If he is kind to you and thoughtful in every other way as you admit he is, drop the gift business for the time being. Gift-giving is a pleasant custom, but any number of pretty good men never get around to it.

Edna C: You and a young man in your office make the same wages. Both are helping your families and striving to "get ahead." You enjoy one another's company, like to lunch or dine together frequently. Is it proper for you to pay your own check?

Not only is it proper, but you should insist on paying your own. Women who have equality of opportunity with men, if they expect to maintain that standard, must accept equality of responsibility.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

WHY IS IT CALLED "BAYONET?"

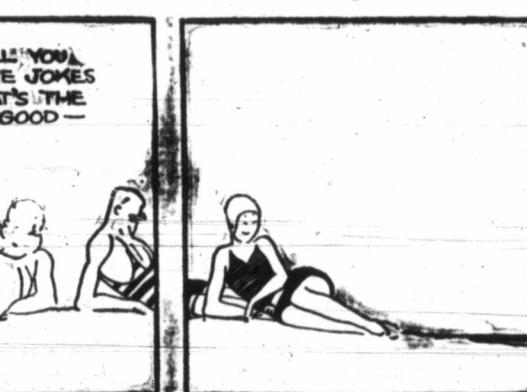

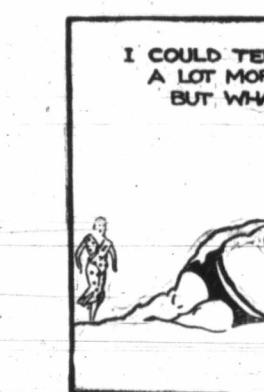

The bayonet is not, like the tank and poison gas, one of the ingenious innovations of the last World War.

It is several hundred years old and the spew of another murderous orgy in the history of the old world, another episode in the story of Europe that is simply one war and armed truce after another.

The bayonet is so-called after that war-torn little city in Southern France, which, because it successfully withheld seventeen sieges that at one time or another were waged against it, became known as "Bayonne the Invincible."

It is a city of low, stone-walled

Social Welfare Leader Urges Respect for "Honorable Bond"

OTTAWA, June 3 (C.N.W.)—The British North America Act "has served a young country well and there is much loose propaganda, and much too little careful thinking in our inconsistent demands for its amendment," Miss Charlotte Whitton, Ottawa, told the Canadian Conference of Social Welfare tonight.

"Amendment of the British North America Act is not an end in itself," Miss Whitton, executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council, said. "It may be only a means of making possible certain developments; it may be that partnership, co-operation and better understanding will, in the end, be much more potent than merely statutory change in effecting greater unity and a more vital national life."

While the B.N.A. Act was not "sacred," it is yet an honorable bond, a contract among a group of provincial communities who sought, and it must be admitted with a great measure of success, reconciliation within its structure of wide diversities of culture, attitudes and racial philosophies," she added.

Education such as is given in elementary schools and in high schools and even colleges today was not sufficient to enable the present generation to perform satisfactorily the duties of life, said Edward O'Meara, of the Extension Department of St. Francois Xavier University.

With the major social, political and economic changes in the past two decades, it became more evident that adult education was a necessity, he said.

That Body of Yours

(By James W. Barton, M.D.)

THE VARIOUS BATHS USED CHRONIC RHEUMATISM

When we think of chronic rheumatism it should be remembered that there has been an attack of inflammation of (a) a joint or (b) of the surrounding tissues—the fibrous ends of the muscles. When the attack of inflammation passes away, it is evident in the joints or in the ends of the muscles some fibrous tissues—bands or adhesions—which seriously interfere with the smooth working of the joints under their control."

As it is the breaking down of this fibrous tissue that will bring back full-painless motion to the joint, various methods of accomplishing this are in general use throughout the world. These methods are: (a) the use of hot baths; (b) packs of various kinds (mud, clay or china); (c) radiant heat; (d) electrical treatment; and (e) massage and manipulation or movement of the joint.

The value of hot baths in "loosening up" the tissues around these old rheumatic joints has been known to physicians for years, but the use of them in the home is not so well known. Dr. Matthew B. Hay, in The British Lancet, describes (a) the complete immersion bath; (b) the medicated bath; and (c) the medicated bath. All these may be taken or given in the home.

The complete immersion (or the entire body) bath requires from fifty to sixty gallons of hot water in the ordinary household bathtub. The temperature ranges from 100 degs. F. to 108 degs. F. The patient stays in the water at 100 degrees for ten to fifteen minutes, and at 108 degs. for only three to five minutes to prevent faintness. In all cases a cold wet towel should be wrapped about the head to prevent headache.

The brine or salt bath can be prepared by adding six pounds of common salt to fifty gallons of hot water at temperature of 104 degs. The patient remains in the bath for ten minutes, then is wrapped in blankets and remains in bed for an hour. This bath might well be taken before retiring.

The mustard bath is prepared by adding from a half to one ounce of mustard to each gallon of water; the required quantity is mixed with cold water before it is put in the bath. The temperature should be 103 degrees F. and the patient remains in the bath for ten to twenty minutes, depending on what his skin can stand."

I believe we should all know about these baths for stiff joints and muscles. However, these baths should not be taken if alone in the house.
